The Bibliographer. A journal of book-lore.

Vol. I. December 1881–May 1882. Vol. II. June–November 1882. Vol. III. December 1882–May 1883. Vol. IV. June–November 1883. Vol. V. December 1883–May 1884. Vol. VI. June–November 1884. London: Elliot Stock, New York: J. W. Bouton. 1882–1884.

Book-lore: a magazine devoted to old-time literature.

Vol. I. December 1884–May 1885. Vol. II. June–November, 1885. Vol. III. December 1885–May 1886. Vol. IV. June–November 1886. Vol. V. December 1886–May 1887. Vol. VI. June–November 1887. London: Elliot Stock, 1885–1887.

The earlier of the two journals here indexed, THE BIBLIOGRAPHER, was edited by Mr. Henry B. Wheatley, with the object to offer, "firstly, the production of fresh information in a convenient and easily accessible form; secondly, the giving an account of what is passing in the bibliographical world; and thirdly, the formation of a medium of communication between those interested in old books." After three years it was discontinued, but as the editor states in his preface to the last volume, "it can scarcely be said to die, for from its ashes will rise a magazine more popular in its objects and scope"; this magazine was BOOKLORE, which in its turn was discontinued after three years. The publisher of the two magazines, Mr. Elliot Stock, published from 1888 to 1894, inclusive, another journal of the same kind, called THE BOOKWORM, AN ILLUSTRATED TREASURY OF OLD-TIME LITERATURE. But though devoted to the same subject as the other two, the treatment is so different that it was deemed better not to include it in this index.

The index herewith offered covers only the articles, not the notes and book reviews. The compiler had hoped to give a much fuller index to the authors of the articles, and an attempt was made to enlist the co-operation of a gentleman in England in order to disclose the authorship of the many anonymous articles. This attempt failed, however.

INDEX TO THE ARTICLES IN "THE BIBLIOGRAPHER" AND "BOOK-LORE."
